

WHO WE ARE

STOP STIGMA NOW (SSN) is made up of professionals with years of experience in opioid addiction treatment or research, and people with lived experience. We are dedicated to ending the pervasive misunderstanding of medication treatment for opioid use disorder, and discrimination toward people who may benefit from it. This misunderstanding has become the greatest barrier to saving lives and helping people achieve recovery.

Some members of our Board of Directors have worked directly with Drs Vincent Dole, Marie Nyswander, and Mary Jeanne Kreek who revolutionized the approach to opioid addiction when they developed the first reliably effective treatment – methadone – in the late 1960s.

WHAT WE DO

SSN develops trustworthy and effective print and electronic material and uses these, through social media and other means, to engage and educate treatment professionals, criminal legal professionals, regulatory agencies, the media and the community at large, including those with lived experience and their families.
